International Relations Principal Theories INTERNATIONAL RELATIONS, PRINCIPAL THEORIES State—and ‘logic of appropriateness’, where rationality is heavily mediated by social norms. International Relations, Principal Theories 1 The study of international relations takes a wide range of theoretical approaches. The major schools of thought differ principally with respect to the factors and processes they emphasize as explanations for world politics—eg military power, material interests, or ideological beliefs. Some theories emerge from within the discipline itself, via a series of ‘great debates’ that have defined the intellectual history of the field. International Relations, Principal Theories Many theories of international relations are internally and externally contested, and few scholars believe only in one or another. In spite of this diversity, several major schools of thought are discernable, differentiated principally by the variables they emphasize—eg military power, material interests, or ideological beliefs.
