"Reading is a complex interaction between the text, the reader and the purposes for reading, which are shaped by the reader's prior knowledge and experiences, the reader's knowledge about reading and writing language and the reader's language community which is culturally and socially situated. Dr. Janette M Hughes The 5 Stages of Reading Development - Children's Library Lady Reading development has fascinated educators, parents and researchers for decades. While we know that the human brain is wired for language acquisition, the reading and writing of an invented language - as all languages are - is something for which the brain is not hardwired. It requires learning and adaptation.
