The Black Mans Burden The The clergyman H. T. Johnson wrote "The Black Man's Burden" in 1899 as a response to Rudyard Kipling's poem "The White Man's Burden," which was published the same year. Kipling's poem makes the racist argument that white people have a moral responsibility to conquer and dominate nonwhite nations. With this in mind, the speaker of "The Black Man's Burden" points out that subjugating other nonwhite populations will only add to the American history of oppression and racism. The Black Man's Burden Poem Summary and Analysis | LitCharts Black Man's Burden is a science fiction novel by American writer Mack Reynolds. It is the first in a sequence of near-future stories set in North Africa, which also includes Border, Breed nor Birth, "Black Sheep Astray", and The Best Ye Breed. Black Man's Burden and its sequels have been called a "notable exception" to the indirect treatment of racial issues in 1960s science fiction magazines. Black Man's Burden - Wikipedia African Americans, among many others, objected to the notion of the "white man's burden." Among the dozens of replies to Kipling's poem was "The Black Man's Burden," written by African-American clergyman and editor H. T. Johnson and published in April 1899. A "Black Man's Burden Association" was even organized with the goal of demonstrating that mistreatment of brown people in the Philippines was an extension of the mistreatment of black Americans at home.
